

Delivering the right information at the right time.

You have a lot to manage at your grain business, which makes fast, accurate documentation critical. In addition, your busy customers must be able to initiate grain offers and transactions at their convenience, regardless of the time of day. And, for them — and you — to make more money, you must be ready to efficiently manage high volumes of activity.

Providing your customers with the ability to interact with you from their mobile devices is essential. So is being able to easily communicate critical information, like the latest market opportunities, current wait times, harvest hours, and more, through targeted push notifications. Make things even more seamless by tying together all transactions into your DTN Grain Portal with Grain Portal Mobile.

Savvy traders are also turning to DTN Grain Portal. This comprehensive grain management solution centralizes all offers and provides integrated hedging that optimizes and protects everyone's bottom lines. It supports easy, real-time management of transactions and allows your customers to maximize their cash marketing. In short, it has become the industry's most trusted, front-end grain trading solution.

"Our customers like it as it gives them the ability to manage their own grain position, and also to sell grain when our location is closed."

DTN Grain Portal

Simple, efficient grain trading.

DTN Grain Portal streamlines and simplifies the entire grain trading process.

- Enter all spot transactions, make and manage offers, and place all hedge orders for your company positions — not just orders associated with offers.
- Automate cancellations and replacements of hedge orders when you change your basis or adjust offers, saving time and money.
- Centralize all company-owned and hedge positions, buy/sell offers, and transactions, as well as monitor them in real time with snapshot features.
- Create long and short positions to stay balanced, according to your preferences.
- Employ automated hedging to eliminate slippage and minimize futures risk.
- Trade grain and other commodities from the same centralized system.
- Let your growers make, manage, and monitor commodity offers around the clock, on any device.

- Integrate your grain accounting systems for faster transaction processing and elimination of double entries.
- Communicate all offers and positions to authorized staff members in real time.
- Generate detailed documentation of open and closed offers and delivery commitments for all parties.
- Customize DTN Grain Portal to your brand.
- Promote special or deferred bids to increase access to grain from fringe customers.
- Allow customers to trade commodities besides grain and deliver a better customer experience.

At all levels in the trading process, DTN Grain Portal can create efficiencies that translate directly into bigger profits, increased savings, and fewer errors. It also can help you deliver better service because you can do more for your customers with fewer resources.

"We were one of the first to begin using DTN Grain Portal. It is an incredibly valuable tool for cash grain farmers and end users looking to buy and sell grain. Producers, especially, seem to really like the convenience it offers."
